Farm Shop and Deli Guide 2022
Edition One

1 Ashvale Farm Shop

Ashvale Farm Shop is a family-run business, dedicated to providing a quality customer-focused, premium farm shop. Inside customers will find a warm and relaxed atmosphere, with friendly staff and a welcoming environment where customers from near and far can relax and take time to appreciate the rural setting. The shop offers a wide selection of local artisan products and farm-based produce. The farm shop allows them to showcase their own homemade, fresh produce too such as bread & pies, desserts and traybakes.

2 Arcadia Deli

As Northern Ireland Delicatessen of the Year 2019 Mark and Laura Brown work hard to position Arcadia at the heart of the local foodie scene. They are particularly supportive of artisan start-up businesses, stocking not only their produce but also laying on events and actively promoting them on social media. It is the oldest retail unit on the Lisburn Road having been opened by the Brown family in 1933. The shop has morphed from a bakery/general store to the fine food emporium it is today.

3 Carlisle's Fresh Foods

At Carlisle Fresh Foods, they believe that great food can only be made with fantastic ingredients and they insist upon using quality, locally sourced products including meat, potatoes and vegetables from County Down. Evolved over decades, the Carlisle group of businesses has become a diverse collection of essential providers, offering everything from kerosene to family food, from boiler pellets to Beaujolais. Yet as different as each of the businesses might be, there is a golden thread that links them; a business asset that can't be bought or created.

22 Seasource Shop

Opened in July 2016 as a pop-up, this has become an excellent shop window for local seafood. Direct sales to the public, including a home delivery service have proven to be very successful and increasingly popular across Northern Ireland. Supporting the local community and the fishing industry is at the heart of what they do. They aim to give as much back to the fishermen as they can. Therefore, buying fresh, sustainable, wild caught and world class seafood from skilled fishmongers helps to support fishing communities. A wide variety of seafood is delivered to the Seafood Shop on Newcastle Street, Kilkeel each morning. Located a stone's throw from Kilkeel Harbour, the seafood shop has the freshest seafood in Northern Ireland - it takes the van just over 2 minutes to get the seafood from the processing factory to the shop. It doesn't get any fresher! You can phone to pre-order, or arrange home delivery.
